Community Invited to Join Virtual Discussion on COVID-19

Medical Experts will Answer Community Members' Questions & Discuss Local Impacts of Virus

IDAHO FALLS, ID – College of Eastern Idaho and Idaho Falls Community Hospital are teaming up to host a live, virtual discussion on the coronavirus pandemic and its impact on the local community. College of Eastern Idaho President, Rick Aman, will moderate a discussion with Dr. Scott Walker, Chief of Internal Medicine at Idaho Falls Community Hospital, and Dr. Troy Brumfield, Chief Medical Officer at Mountain View Hospital. The virtual event will take place on Thursday, April 30 from noon to 1 p.m. on YouTube Live.

“We know many people still have questions about the coronavirus,” said Aman. “It is important people get the answers they need because, unfortunately, it appears we will be dealing with some form of the virus for the foreseeable future.”

During the first 30 minutes of the event, Dr. Brumfield and Dr. Walker will discuss how the virus has spread in the community, the severity of cases locally, what Idahoans should do to protect themselves and their families and what people can expect to see in the coming months. Both doctors will then answer questions from the community.

“The coronavirus pandemic will impact each community differently,” said Dr. Brumfield. “While there is so much information out there on the virus, it is important residents have the facts about what we are seeing in Idaho Falls. I hope community members will join us in this discussion and get the information they need to feel more confident in how they should move forward.”

Anyone can join the discussion on YouTube Live on Thursday at noon by following this link, <https://youtu.be/-Y18WZnjdrU>. Questions can be submitted through the comment section on YouTube or by emailing questions@cei.edu. Community members are encouraged to email their questions ahead of the event.

The event will be recorded. So, community members who cannot watch on Thursday will be able to watch the event at their own convenience.
